FALL, 2016 HONORS NEWSLETTER

Cabrillo Resilience Project

To begin the Cabrillo College Resilience Project, I would like to encourage all honors students to read this book, perhaps over winter break. And, since it's only 230 pages, you can read it in a weekend! It is available in a both book format (Kindle too) and audio format. There is even a summary of the book available. It is available in local libraries and I will be requesting that the Cabrillo College Library acquire it. I highly recommend this short read.

This summary from the Penguin Random House website will explain why I am suggesting this book for the project.

At the age of thirty-six, on the verge of completing a decade's worth of training as a neurosurgeon, Paul Kalanithi was diagnosed with stage IV lung cancer. One day he was a doctor treating the dying, and the next he was a patient struggling to live. And just like that, the future he and his wife had imagined evaporated. When Breath Becomes Air chronicles Kalanithi's transformation from a naive medical student "possessed," as he wrote, "by the question of what, given that all organisms die, makes a virtuous and meaningful life" into a neurosurgeon at Stanford working in the brain, the most critical place for human identity, and finally into a patient and new father confronting his own mortality.

I would like to encourage all students who are interested in participating in this project to please email me at lescott@cabrillo.edu. Even if you simply want to suggest a book, film or local event that fits the theme of resilience, I would welcome all participation!
